Illustrated in accompanying issue of The Orchid Review May 03

Phalaenopsis Barbara Hedge was accepted 19 May 1970 and omitted from the register by error.

Originator’s cautionary note: Plants are very similar to the seed parent; the influence of the pollen parent is not obvious.

New or new to registration, intergeneric hybrid genus with abbreviation (in square brackets after the genus name) for the following combinations. The botanical authority follows each component genus.

Ophramptis [Opt.] J.M.H. Shaw nothogen. nov. = Anacamptis Rich. x Ophrys L. This nothogenus is required to replace Orchiophrys now that Orchis has been redefined and many species have been transferred to Anacamptis.

Umlandara [Uml.] J.M.H. Shaw & R. Umland nothogen. nov. = Brassavola R.Br. x Cattleya Lindl. x Caularthron Raf. x Laelia Lindl. x Schomburgkia Lindl. [br-gp 7].

Natural genera new to registration: Ponerorchis [Pnr.] Rchb.f. (see note below);

† Species appearing for the first time as parents in registration: Bulbophyllum claptonense Rolfe (see note below); Catasetum galeatum Lacerda; Ctsm. kempfii Dodson & R.Vasquez; Ctsm. schunkei Dodson & Bennett; Ctsm. semicirculatum Miranda; Ctsm. uncatum Rolfe; Cattleya nobilior Rchb.f. (see note below); Disa vasselotii Bolus ex Schlt.; Doritis buyssoniana (Rchb.f.) J.M.H.Shaw (see note below); Habenaria roebelenii Rolfe [apparently omitted from Index Kewensis and IPNI, but published in Orchid Review 21: 39-40 (1913); see also Orchids (AOS) 70(2): 129-131 (Feb. 2001)]; Ponerorchis graminifolia Rchb.f.; Pnr. chidori (Makino) Ohwi (see note below).

CORRECTIONS

Kriegerara Pacific Shooting Stars was published in Orch. Rev. Suppl. 110(1247): 78 (Sept. 2002) with the wrong pollen parent, please change it to read Wilsonara Firecracker.

Phalaenopsis Appetizer was registered in error as Phal. Appetiser in 1982. Please amend the entry in SLOH Addendum 1981-1985 p. 562 accordingly.

Phalaenopsis Christena Peters appeared by error in SLOH Addendum 1986-1990 p.545 as Christena. Please add the missing part of the grex name.

Phalaenopsis Christina Louise appeared by error in SLOH Addendum 1999-2000 p.551 as Christinia Louise. Please correct the spelling.

Phalaenopsis Clownalley Sea Dreams was published in Orch. Rev. Suppl. 110(1248): 105 (Dec. 2002) with the wrong pollen parent, please change it to read Phal. Peach Unexpected.
Phragmipedium Predator was registered by J.L. Fischer in March 1999 with Phrag. caudatum as the pollen parent. This pollen parent should be changed to read Phrag. warscewiczianum as this taxon is now recognised as distinct from Phrag. caudatum. Please correct the entry in SLOH Addendum 1999-2001 p. 667. This has the unfortunate consequence that Phrag. Wössner Twist (Sept. 2001) becomes a later synonym of Phrag. Predator, and the Addendum p. 669 should be amended accordingly.

REGISTRAR’S NOTES

Brassavola - changes to accepted species
Following the treatment proposed by Withner, Cattleyas 5: 31-68 (1998), B. cordata Lindl. has been replaced as a grex parent by B. subulifolia Lindl. and B. grandiflora Lindl. is accepted as separate from B. nodosa (L.) Lindl. This means that B. grandiflora has been accepted as a grex parent for B. Madosa (1998); Blc. Louise Bugbee (2002); Blc. Rosy Dawn (1961).

Bulbophyllum claptonense Rolfe
This taxon has been treated as a synonym of the variable and widespread Bulb. lobbii Lindl. by J.J. Vermeulen in Orchids of Borneo 2: 259 (1991). It is here accepted for registration on advice from Leslie Garay who takes a more critical approach to species within Bulbophyllum s.l. It is treated as Bulb. lobbii var. claptonense by Siegerist in Bulbophyllums and their allies 112-113 (2001), but I have not yet been able to trace validating publication for this combination. Furthermore, no attempt to describe these varieties or indicate their application to cultivated material is made by Seigerist, other than to indicate that ‘Cass Lake’ belongs to var. nettesiae.

For the purpose of registration the cultivar ‘Kathy’s Gold’ is regarded as representing Bulb. lobbii var. lobbii, while the name Bulb. claptonense has been applied by the registrant to a plant with a prominent bulging callus, and half-month depressions on the lateral lobes, which characters contrast with the general pattern of Bulb. lobbii variants with a small light spot within a surrounding ring of a darker colour, which is either raised or sunken very slightly. The picture of the clone named Bulb. claptonense supplied with the registration application is very similar to the plant illustrated in J.J. Vermeulen in Orchids of Borneo 2: plate 18D (1991). This nomenclatural application is subject to verification pending further research.

Cattleya citrina replaced by Epidendrum citrinum
The name Cattleya citrina (La Llave & Lexarza) Lindley has long been used for a well-known Mexican orchid which is better placed in Encyclia or Euchile. As these last two genera are not yet accepted for registration by APOR, this leaves the option of adopting the name Epidendrum citrinum (La Llave & Lexarza) Rchb.f. for registration. See Dressler & Pollard, The genus Encyclia in Mexico, 2nd ed. p.82-83 (1976); McVaugh, Flora Novo-Galiciana 16: 87, 89-90 (1985); Withner, Cattleyas 5: 138-139 (1998). Consequently, the following registered grexes have had their parentage changed and many have also changed nothogenus.

Cattleya nobilior Rchb.f. is accepted as distinct from C. walkeriana Gardn.

Dendrobium Kimilsungia

Periodically the registrar receives queries about this plant. The name is widely used in North Korea for a hybrid Dendrobium derived from Den. Alle Ale Kai x Den. Pompadour, which grex was originally registered as Den. Clara Bundt by the originator in 1964. This plant was also named Kimilsungia by Indonesian President Sukarno, in honour of Kim Il Sung of North Korea on the occasion of his visit to Indonesia in April 1965. It is not clear to the registrar whether the name Kimilsungia applies to the grex or a cultivar derived from it. There is also a similarly named grex, Den. Kimilsung Flower, which is derived from Den. Alle Ale Kai x Den. Lady Constance.

Doritis pulcherrima var. buyssoniana nom. inval.

Christenson (2001) in his Phalaenopsis monograph p. 229-230 supplies interesting information leading to the acceptance of Phal. buyssoniana Rchb.f. at specific rank. Until now this plant had been treated in registration as Doritis pulcherrima var. buyssoniana, however this combination has not been validly published. As the Registration Authority is advised by APOR to retain Doritis for the time being, pending a full published molecular investigation of this group, the next step forward is to identify grexes registered with var. buyssoniana as a parent. In order to do so legitimately requires the validation of a new combination: Doritis buyssoniana (Rchb.f.) J.M.H.Shaw comb. nov. Basionym: Phalaenopsis buyssoniana Rchb.f. in Gard. Chron. 2: 295 (1888).

The following grexes, all in Dtps. unless noted otherwise, have been identified with Doritis buyssoniana as a parent.

Anne de Bruyne (1971)                  Pinkie (1971)
Bonita (1965)                          Purity (1968)
Brilliance (1991)                      Rose Gleam (1962)
Honeymoon (1966)                       Snowy Jewel (1979)
Malaysian Beauty (1967)                Tan Swee Eng (1973)
Laeliocattleya dormaniana Rolfe replaced by Cattleya dormaniana (Rchb.f) Rchb.f.

This plant is well known as an atypical Cattleya because some clones produce an extra two or four rudimentary pollinia, which prompted the speculation by Reichenbach that it was a natural hybrid of C. bicolor × L. pumila, an idea that has since been abandoned. Recognition of this taxon as a Cattleya species is long overdue in registration and the database has now been amended to reflect current thinking as expressed by Fowlie, The Brazilian bifoliate Cattleyas and their color varieties 12-17 (1977); Braem, Cattleya 1: 30-32 (1984); Withner, Cattleyas 1: 51-52 (1988). Curiously, this taxon had been entered in the database as a grex, rather than a natural hybrid or species, and consequently the possibility remains that some may have synthesised the artificial hybrid C. bicolor × L. pumila, then concluded that it should be named Lc. Dormaniana and subsequently used it as a grex parent for a registered hybrid. Anyone who knows of such a hybrid being used as the parent of a registered grex, is requested to contact the registrar with details so that the register can be amended.

Please note that the artificial grex resulting from C. bicolor × L. pumila was named Lc. Binotii in 1901 (Orchid Review 1901: 304, 326) and hence can not bear the name Lc. Dormaniana. It was first known from a natural hybrid plant imported by Peeters of Brussels (Gardeners Chronicle 1900, 2: 370; Orchid Review 1900: 357).

Phalaenidium Tsiae - a further note

This interesting plant is mentioned in Christenson, The genus Phalaenopsis - a monograph : 57 (2001) where it is said to be derived from 'plants of Phal. braceana (as Kingidium naviculare) hybridised in Japan in the early 1980’s with plants thought to be Phal. hainanensis.' Only in the index (p. 322) do we find both the nothogenus Phalaenidium and the name tsiae attributed to Hashimoto, although p. 57 explains that this name was tentative and informal, meaning that it did not meet the criteria for valid publication under the ICBN. It appeared in New Hybrids (Japan) 3: 40-41 (1984). Because of its interest and limited availability in the West, a translation of Hashimoto’s original article by Yoko Otsuki is provided below. (This translation is also due to appear in the Phalaenopsis Journal along with comments from Christenson.) There has been speculation that this plant represents Phal. stobartiana, which Christenson considers ‘unlikely’. A plant under this name is illustrated in Die Orchidee 46(6): 235 (1995) as the cultivar ‘Tahitian Dancer’ which clone Christenson appears to refer to Phal. stobartiana. Whatever the identity of the plants illustrated and cultivated under the above names, Akihiko Hashimoto of Kumamoto, Japan states that he received the original Phalaenidium tsiae from the wild in southern China and took it to be a natural hybrid of Kingidium naviculare with Phal. hainanensis, under which parentage it has been registered at present. In addition Akihiko Hashimoto was responsible for naming his two clones ‘Green Goddess’ and ‘Tahitian Dancer’, which apparently have been used in Japan to breed small-flowered green Phalaenopsis hybrids.

The registrar would like to thank Toshinori Tanaka and Yoko Otsuki for help with the above.

Kingidium naviculare and a new intergeneric hybrid by Akihiko Hashimoto. (Translated from Japanese by Yoko Otsuki, Oxford, UK. Originally published in New Orchids (Japan), 8: 40-41 (1984).)

“It is known that Phalaenopsis wilsonii and Phal. hainanensis are found in China. I would like to report some observations on Phal. stobartiana, which is treated by some as a synonym of Phal. hainanensis. Phalaenopsis stobartiana was reported by Reichenbach in 1877 in Gardener’s Chronicle as a species from unknown habitat, and a coloured illustration of it is shown in ‘The Genus Phalaenopsis’ 1980 by Sweet. It is deciduous, with the leaves absent when it flowers; many flowers are produced in raceme, similar but smaller than Phal. wilsonii; the midlobe of the lip is naviculare, with a keel on the centre.

Phaenopsis hainanensis was reported by Tang et al., as a new species in ‘Acta Phytotaxonomica Sinica’ in 1974, its typical specimen represents the same taxon as collection no. 27597 which was collected by S. K. Lau on Mt. Bao-Dian, Pai-Sha in Hainan 1936, and is also kept in the Herbarium at Harvard University. Sweet thinks that this specimen is the same as Phal. stobartiana. Recently a new species has been found for which Tsi is preparing the name Kingidium naviculare Tsi. This is deciduous, with green tepals, and a purple lip with a keel on the mid-lobe, this fits Reichenbach's description of 1877 mentioned above; its tepals are a beautiful apple-green. Thus, some people say that K. naviculare and Phal. stobartiana are the same.

Between 1981 and 1982 I managed to obtain material K. naviculare among specimens of Phal. hainanensis. I also obtained two rather interesting individuals. They were sent as if they were a single plant with their roots tangled. Perhaps they grew in the same colony. Their lips are almost the same as Phal. hainanensis and Phal. stobartiana, (fig 3,4) but there is a trace of a spur on the lips (fig 5) and four pollinia, which differs from Phalaenopsis. The colour of tepals is from green to greenish-dark purple. I suppose they are midway between K. naviculare and Phal. hainanensis. A lateral view of Phal. stobartiana illustrated by Reichenbach has a spur or curve: I begin to think that this represented the type specimen and that the species which I describe could be the same taxon. Unfortunately the botanical museum in Vienna, where the specimen was held, was burnt during the war.

Burbridge thought in The Garden 22: 118-119 (1882) that this species was a variation of Phal. wightii, and today it is placed under K. deliciosum (Reichb.f) Sweet; but I still think that it is possible that Phal. stobartiana is a natural hybrid. As it may be difficult to prove whether the plant I received is a natural hybrid or the true Phal. stobartiana, I would like to name it XPhalaenidium tsiae for Mr. Tsi. The plant resembles Phalaenopsis as a whole, but the flower colour is close to Kingidium. This plant could be useful in the breeding of green-tinted Phalaenopsis.” [Translation by Yoko Otsuki, February 2003. Note that the original photographs have not been reproduced here.]

Phragmipedium Grande

There appear to be two different grexes grown under this name. The original Phrag. Grande is Phrag. caudatum x Phrag. longifolium with a basically green flower and a little red-bronze or mahogany colouring on the pouch. It is illustrated in Reichenbachia 2nd series, 1: t.16 (1892) which plate is reproduced in Die Orchidee 44(6): 284 (1993). The other grex is Phrag. warscewiczianum x Phrag. longifolium for which the registered name Phrag. Wössner Supergrande is available. This grex produces flowers which are much darker in colour with more mahogany-red on the pouch, cf. illustration in Die Orchidee 44(6): 296 (1993). Probably, this confusion has arisen because Phrag. warscewiczianum was at one time registered as Phrag. caudatum var. warscewiczianum. Anyone registering a grex involving a parent labelled Phrag. Grande is requested to check its identity please.

Phragmipedium Fireworks

This grex was registered as Phrag. pearcei x Phrag. Grande, but appears to have been made using the dark red Phrag. warscewiczianum-derived plants. Its parentage should therefore be recorded as Phrag. pearcei x Phrag. Grande. Wössner Supergrande. Phrag. pearcei tends to ‘wash out’ colours in hybrids, rather than intensify them. The registrar would like to thank Robert Quené of Orchids Limited (MN) for help with the above two items.

Ponerorchis [Pnr.] Rchb.f.

While verifying the species names used in Orchis, it was discovered that two species from Japan had, in the past, been included in the register which would be better treated under Ponerorchis, a genus that is new to registration. In Genera Orchidacearum 2: 354 (2001) Cribb notes that Chusa has been included within Ponerorchis by Vermeulen, but molecular studies have suggested that it may be better kept separate. Recently, in The Alpine Gardener 291 (Sept. 2002) Cribb and Perner related that while Ponerorchis has been regarded as congeneric with Gymnadenia R.Br. due to mistaken observation of the viscidia in preserved specimens, now Ponerorchis should be regarded as valid. They further comment, “All species ascribed to the genus Chusa Nevski are best placed in Ponerorchis Rchb.f., a genus that predates Chusa.” The two species in question are Orchis rupestris (Miq.) Schltr. which is now Pnr. graminifolia Rchb.f. and Orchis chidori (Makino) Schltr. which is now Pnr. chidori (Makino) Ohwi.

As a consequence the grex registered in 1956 as Orchis Suzu-chidori now becomes Ponerorchis. Subsequently, it transpires that Suzu-chidori is the Japanese vernacular name for the hybrid Pnr. graminifolia x Pnr. chidori, a hybrid that is also known from the wild.

_Eulophia andamensis ‘Pretty Green Bay’_
Leaves 6-8, petiolate, lanceolate, entire, dark green. Flowers 18-45 on spikes 61-130 cm, bracteate, 6.6 cm wide; tepals pale green, lanceolate; lip green at base and margin, white at centre with maroon striations. A spike will be in flower for 25 days, with 15-20 flowers open at any one time; total flowering period lasts about 49 days. Selected from wild stock by D. R. Singh, Central Agricultural Research Institute, P. O. Box 181, Port Blair 744 101, Andaman & Nicobar Islands, India. E-mail: Pblcarian@sancharnet.in
