NEWSLETTER

OF THE RHS ORCHID HYBRID REGISTRATION ADVISORY GROUP (OHRAG)
No. 7, SEPTEMBER 2016

Welcome to the annual newsletter from OHRAG. The group is primarily concerned with matters that affect the registration of orchid hybrids, particularly nomenclature and procedures. This newsletter presents information drawn from items that have arisen during the last year.

OHRAG Membership

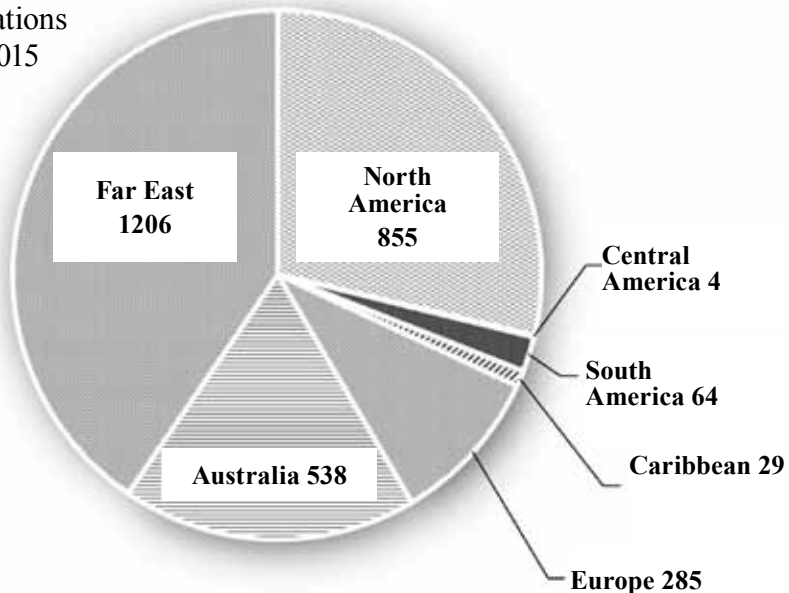

The membership of the group remains unchanged from last year, apart from the addition of two new corresponding members, Dr Patricia Harding (USA) and Olaf Gruss (Germany), who are both well-known authors, under the continuing chairmanship of Johan Hermans.

OHRAG meets twice yearly to consider items that affect orchid hybrid registration. During the last 12-month period OHRAG met on the island of Jersey at the Eric Young Orchid Foundation during December 2015, and at the RHS Lindley building during Chelsea Flower Show week in May 2016.

Where does orchid hybrid breeding take place?

It was interesting to review the geographical origin of hybrid registrations, which in turn reflects hybridising activity. Not surprisingly most applications come from warmer parts of the globe, and also reflect regional specialisations, with Taiwan taking the lead in Phalaenopsis breeding.

Recent nomenclature

Rafaël Govaerts (Senior Content Editor – Plant & Fungal Names, Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew) announced earlier this year that the orchid entries in the World Checklist of Selected Plant Families have been updated to reflect the classification accepted in the now completed Genera Orchidacearum. At the time of the announcement there were 27,732 accepted species and 773 accepted genera in Orchidaceae.

Amitostigma and Ponerorchis into Hemipilia

A recent study (Tang et al. 2015) based on 235 accessions of the Amitostigma alliance revealed that Ponerorchis and Amitostigma are considerably intertwined and represent a single genus. Also embedded within this are Hemipilia, Hemipiliopsis, Neottianthe and Tsaiorchis. The oldest available name is Hemipilia, and new combinations in Hemipilia are provided for most of the taxa. This change has been accepted, and results in a name change for the widely grown Ponerorchis graminifolia, which becomes Hemipilia graminifolia.

New edition of the Cultivated Plant Code

In July 2016 a new (9th) edition of the International Code Of Nomenclature for Cultivated Plants (ICNCP) was distributed. The ICNCP now includes the rules that govern the formation and use of grex names in orchids. It contains much useful information, including on the relationship between a natural hybrid and a grex of the same putative parent. Besides grex names it also covers cultivars, Groups and hybrid genera, as well as guidance on how to deal with trade designations (also known as “selling names”). It was published as Scripta Horticulturae number 18 by the International Society for Horticultural Science (ISHS).

The ISHS is the body that oversees and appoints registration authorities including the Royal Horticultural Society as International Registration Authority for orchid hybrids.

Using the Group concept to name plants

From time to time I am asked if remakes of a grex can be named. Until recently the answer was basically ‘No: use a cultivar name’. However it is now possible to provide and establish valid names for grex re-makes using a device called the Group.

A Group is a collective name applied to a selection of plants that is defined by a morphological or physiological description. Consequently, it is not a customised unit for naming grex re-makes, but it can be usefully employed to do that and much more. As a collective name it is similar to a grex in that it can contain any number of cultivars or individuals. However, unlike a grex, it is not parentage defined, but description based, although it is helpful to list the parentage as well as the character(s) on which it is delimited. These can be quite simple, for example flower colour as in White-flowered Group, or more subtle as in type of floral scent, or leaf shape. It is also important to recognise that a Group used in this way is not a grex equivalent, since it is not parentage based, nor is it of equal rank. A Group is a rank below grex, since a grex can contain one or more Groups, but a Group cannot contain a grex. However, a grex that is no longer accepted as such, perhaps because a parent has been synonymised, could be recognised as a Group if there is at least one distinguishing character to establish it.

To name a grex re-make using a Group requires that the re-make is distinguishable from the earlier-made version of the grex. Usually this involves a different set of parents, still of the original species or grexes involved, but different cultivars or races. Sometimes this is simply the reciprocal cross, which can produce quite different results. Or it can be different cultivars such as white-flowered plants, botanical varieties, or even unnamed geographical races, or plants that have larger flowers (perhaps through line breeding), or longer leaves – in short, any characteristic that one wishes to distinguish. As a result the description need not be elaborate, but it is helpful to point out differences with earlier grexes if possible.

The Group epithet is always written with a capital initial letter and followed by the word Group, optionally contracted to Gp. It is always used as part of the name to distinguish a Group from a grex or other taxon. Hence, Roger Smith Group, if it is a grex re-make, would be written thus: Cattleya Horace gx, Roger Smith Group, ‘Ben’s Delight’, where Cattleya is the genus, Horace is the grex, Roger Smith Group is the Group, and ‘Ben’s Delight’ is the cultivar.

Groups are widely used to name plants in horticulture. In the past a similar concept was known as a convar, but that is rarely seen these days, and no longer available under the current codes of nomenclature. Similarly, plants sold as a series also represent a Group. Sometimes they are colour selections, or used to group cultivars that are frost hardy or disease resistant. For example, a Group defined by rust resistance or nematode resistance is possible.

Another way to utilise the Group is to recognise variation within a species. Most cattleyas, for example, are known in many colour forms which have acquired mysterious and not validly published names such as var. alba, or var. semi-alba and so forth. The use of var. (for variety or varietas) implies that the name has botanical rank and has been validly published, but often it has not. Currently, variety is only acceptable as a botanical rank and must be formally described, typified and published to be valid, whereas cultivar and Groups can be established by publication in a nursery catalogue with a minimal description that might consist of just one word. By contrast, botanical names such as forma, variety or subspecies, and incidentally hybrid genera, cannot be validly published in ephemeral literature such as commercial plant lists and nursery catalogues. Hence the current and invalid usages of var. alba, semi-alba and so forth could be replaced by White-flowered Group, or Semi-white-flowered Group and so forth. This should not be done in those comparatively rare cases where a genuine botanical variety or forma has been published. Synonymised or otherwise invalid botanical names previously at the rank of species, subspecies, variety and forma can also be re-used as Groups or cultivars, where it is horticulturally desirable to recognise these entities.
